

“COMMON ROOTS OF THE EUROPEAN WORDS” – CREW Training Course in Reggio Calabria (Italy) 11 - 16 September 2017

Project Reference: 2017-1-IT03-KA105-010991

For youth workers to recover the linguistic roots through a training course, that highlights the cultural affinity and enhances the diversity

About Project

In the 60th year since the signing of the Treaties of Rome, which gave start to the process of European integration, it is most appropriate to re-read the words of the “Manifesto di Ventotene”: “A free and united Europe is the necessary premise to the strengthening of modern civilization”. With our “vision” (CREW – COMMON ROOTS OF EUROPEAN WORDS) we want to contribute to the preservation and revival of the European community sense. Our project involves participants who come from 12 countries; they are the “crew” of the ship that will sail many routes (cultural and linguistic routes) and finally they will arrive in the safe port of European Civilization. Through non-formal learning of the common linguistic roots, of cultural affinities, and through the promotion of diversity, we can recognize ourselves in other people; and we can develop the feeling of a common European culture and identity. This awareness is necessary to re-new the idea of Europe as a community of people; a community that want to break down cultural barriers and to rejects radicalism and dis-integrating rhetoric. The project activities will encourage the idea of a society founded on the values of “pluralism, non-discrimination, tolerance, justice, solidarity and equality between women and men” (Article 2 - Treaty on European Union).

Main objectives of this project

- to acquire and improve skills such as: problem solving social skills; and to promote respect, equality, dialogue and tolerance.
- the rediscovery of common roots will strengthen the European citizenship concept of a community based on respect for fundamental human rights, as reported and protected by the European Union Charter of Fundamental Rights.
- acquiring methods and techniques to foster intercultural approaches; they will increase their idea of respect, equality, dialogue culture through the study and the discovery of diversity;
- improving the knowledge of foreign languages, that is a necessary condition to ensure common training processes interconnection which contribute to improving the relational perspectives.
- foster participants’ awareness about other cultures and countries, offering them the opportunity to build international networks useful for active citizenship

Participants

The group consist of 26 participants (2 from each Country and 4 participants's Italian) aged between 18 and 35 years.

Participant’s profile:

- youth worker, youth leader, youth trainer, volunteer or any young person working with youth and young people with fewer opportunities on local, regional and international level;

- highly motivated and able to work in an international team;
- participants will have the possibility to present their cultures and their traditions, during informal moments as well as Intercultural night activity.

The participants will be engaged in the months preceding the mobility:

- In the preparation of presentation mini-clip to make known its country of origin;
- Presentation of their NGO involved
- Research on similarity of sounds and meanings of some words (from your mother tongue to other languages of other participant's European countries)

Main Activities

One of the strongest point of the training-course "CREW" will be to explore the issue of Language, which is a typical pattern of "human action organization", according to an anthropological perspective. We will put the participants in a position to analyze the basic structure of its idioms with non-formal learning method, thereby fostering the curiosity about the person in front and the curiosity about himself, according to an intercultural connection. Especially we want to involve as well young people during non-formal and informal outdoor activities. Reggio Calabria, has represented the crossroads of many cultures (Greek, Latin, Norman, Angevin, Spanish, Hebrew, etc.) for centuries; even today, here we can find a cultural and linguistic minority (Ellenophone) which has retained its own peculiarities.

Museo Nazionale della Magna Grecia

The Reggio Calabria National Museum is one of the most famous Italian museums and houses several significant relics of the Calabrian colonies of Magna Graecia. The museum's building stands in the heart of the city, facing Piazza de Nava, at a short distance from the famous "I. Falcomatà" promenade. Among the very first buildings in Italy intended solely for the exhibition of archaeological findings, it was designed by Marcello Piacentini, one of the most famous architects of the Fascist era, who drew inspiration for the project from his visits to the most important European museums. The institution of a state museum was implemented by Superintendent Paolo Orsi, whose aim was to unite the collections of the Civic Museum, established in 1882, with the findings unearthed during the excavation campaigns he himself promoted in Calabria. Inaugurated in 1959, the National Museum has known many important transformations in the course of the years. In 1981, for example, the Underwater archaeology section was added to the structure, in order to provide an adequate exhibition space for the celebrated Riace Bronzes, found in 1972; also, a permanent exhibition of artefacts produced in the Magna Graecia colonies was arranged on the second floor.

Aragon Castle

The history of the castle follows step by step the history of the city at least from the 6th century AD onwards. In the Greek era, and then following in the Roman period, the hilltop position of the castle would certainly have had a fundamental importance to the protection of the city.
